

Massapequa Security Firm Adds Project Manager

July 3, 2014

Ed/Training, Long Island

anaculver

IntraLogic Solutions, a security system provider in Nassau County, works primarily with school districts and government agencies, both of which have faced increased needs for security upgrades over the past few years. New technologies are constantly being developed to provide improved systems, which require companies to invest in ongoing education and training for the development of new products and materials. To assist in making operations more efficient, WDI has funded the training of a project manager. The company will use the training opportunity to formalize and document procedures for the creation of an efficient training system for future new hires. The successful utilization of this system will result in better orientation of new employees, contributing to a well-organized staff.